

ABSTRACT

Artificial iris and lens apparatus are disclosed. An example apparatus includes a lens-shaped body having first and second regions. The second region has a lower light transmission characteristic than the first region and at least a portion of the second region is configured to reduce a retinal distortion.